GOING LIVE FOR 2012

Dover's Olympic live site is up and ready to go. Despite worries from nearby residents about noise, the big screen has been approved and last week was put up next to The Ellie Café in the Market Square. It was secured by Kent County Council's sports, leisure and Olympics service working with the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games. Dover is the first live site chosen that is not a city. The screen will be used to provide community information and local events as well as for national events and the Olympics in 2012. The BBC will provide content and manage the screen.

A DEFUNCT nightclub in Dover is about to get a long-awaited makeover after numerous complaints from residents about the state of the dilapidated building.

The old Snoops venue in Castle Street, which used to be the popular Granada Cinema in the 1930s, has been described as an eyesore by people in the town.

A Facebook group has even been set up calling for owner JD Wetherspoon to tidy up the place.

The pub chain had until recently failed to take action, but following a range of letters from residents and Dover District Council, the company has called in contractors to smarten up the exterior.

A spokesman told Yourdover: "Work is due to start this week to tidy up the outside and make it safe.

"Nothing is going to be done internally, but we understand residents' concerns about the exterior. We appreciate it is an eyesore in Dover and we aim to make it look a lot better."

This will come as welcome news to many who remember it as a thriving venue.

Nigel Collor, who is Cabinet member for access and property manager at Dover District Council, said: "Top artists used to play there like Cliff Richard, Billy Fury and Helen Shapiro.

"It was the first building to bear the name Granada and it has the most beautiful staircase and balcony inside.

WHAT'S ON & WATCH Village meets the challenge to keep church standing

VILLAGERS in Eythorne have raised thousands of pounds to help restore their beloved church.

Their efforts followed an unsuccessful request to English Heritage five years ago for a grant to help restore St Peter and Paul's Church, which is more than 900 years old.

Costs for the project reached £70,000 and through fund-raising events and generous grants from a number of organisations, residents have breathed a sigh of relief that the church will remain standing.

A flower festival was held over the weekend to celebrate the restoration of the building.

Resident Judith Christie, aged 76, who moved to the village in the early 1970s, was at the forefront of the

She said: "We're not a wealthy parish, so it's been hard work, but with the support of the community we can now pay off the rest of the bill.
"We managed to raise £40,000, which is a massive amount for a village like this.

"Years ago we attempted to get a grant from English Heritage, but after filling out all the forms, which took about a year, we were turned down."

Mrs Christie, who lives with her husband Alan, said when the cost of repairs, which included a leaking roof, started spiralling out of control a number of community events were organised to help raise the money.

Friends Of Kent Churches, Marshall's Charity, the Garfield Weston Foundation, Kent County Council and the Council For The Care of Churches also made donations to Churches also made donations to help with the project.

Mrs Christie said: "The church is very important to this community. We love it. About 40 people attend services there regularly and an awful lot come here for weddings, formerly and here for weddings, funerals and baptisms."

Villagers are determined to carry on fund-raising to ensure future generations can enjoy the church.

Mrs Christie said: "We have to continue raising money to pay for the upkeep of the church, to light and heat the building and contribute to the vicar's stipend. We don't get any help with this – it's up to us to keep the church running.

Trio awarded MBEs in Queen's honours list

THREE local people have been awarded MBEs in the Queen's Birthday Honours, which were announced at the weekend.

Elizabeth Cole from Deal was awarded the medal for services to the community in Deal and Walmer.

Melissa Hackney, originally from Deal, was honoured for her work as press office manager with Merseyside

Finally, Richard Laslett from Sandwich was recognised for voluntary service to sport and to young people in the communities of Canterbury and Eastry.

£5,000 handouts to aid your community

COMMUNITY groups are being offered grants of up to £5,000 from the Dover District Neighbourhood Forums.

Dover council and Kent County

Council have given funding to the forums to give out to local projects.

Voluntary and community organisations are being invited to apply for the grants, as long as they can show their venture benefits the community.

Application packs are available from KCC or can be downloaded from www. dover.gov.uk/neighbourhoodforums/

The closing date for applications is September 30.

Young drivers in hot water with the law

A TEENAGER has been stopped by police in Buckland after driving an overloaded car erratically.

The 17-year-old was reported for summons and given a Section 59 warning, meaning if he commits a similar offence he will have his car confiscated. A 19-year-old man was arrested in Buckland on suspicion of attempting to pervert the course of justice with false number plates on his motorbike. He also had no insurance or documents.

His vehicle was seized for examination and he was released on bail until Tuesday, July 21, while officers make further enquiries.

Terminally ill girl will be princess for a day

BY MARIJKE COX

A YOUNG girl suffering from a rare terminal disease is to become an honorary princess in the Dover Carnival

Ten-year-old Hayley Okines, who has Hutchinson Gilford Progeria Syndrome, will travel in the procession alongside a Dover princess on Saturday, July 4.

Her condition, which affects one in eight million newborns, causes accelerated ageing and at just ten she has the respiratory, cardiovascular and arthritic conditions of an 80-year-old.

Only two youngsters have the disease in the whole of the UK and around 45 worldwide, with life expectancy placed at just 13 years. Mandie Sehmbi, chairman of Dover Carnival Association Ltd, said she first saw Hayley, who lives in Brighton, on television back in February and immediately wanted to do something special for her.

Personality

"She's such a happy little thing even though she has this rare condition. She's got a real personality, so it's going to be great fun having her at the carnival," she said.

"I was over the moon when her mum sent me a message saying Hayley would love to come."

The youngster will travel with the deputy Dover queen in a 1932 Aston Le Mans open-top car, donated by Kent Vintage Wedding Cars, in front of the carnival court float.

District councillor John Goodwin is donating

£70 to cover petrol costs, and other members of the community have also offered to chip in. Mandie said: "The girls from the Dover court are so excited about meeting Hayley – it's going to be a very special carnival this year.

"Donations made to us on the day will go towards helping pay for treatment. People aren't so aware of this condition, so I want us to do all we can to help.

"There's a little girl in the UK called Ashanti who suffers from the same condition. I would have loved for her to have come, too.'

Hayley will have her own sash and as the procession passes through the Market Square, a welcome message to the honorary princess will flash up on the new giant screen. Mandie said: "It's going to be an absolute ball.

This little girl never stops smiling despite what she's going through. We're gearing ourselves up for a special day and everybody is getting more and more excited."

Although there is no cure for the genetic condition, Hayley is having constant treatment and has to travel to Boston, US, every six weeks.

Town best place to come aboard

CRUISE passengers stopping off in Dover have praised the town for its

More than 140 ships with 273,817 passengers visited the port during the last cruise season.

Research commissioned by the Kent Cruise Partnership found that visitors were very satisfied with their stay.

A survey of 800 passengers and 500 crew members showed they were particularly pleased with the accommodation, guided tours, historic sites and transport services. They also highlighted the friendliness of residents.

Fran Warrington, head of Visit Kent at Kent County Council, welcomed the survey results.

Opportunities

"Over the past two years we have introduced a whole range of opportunities and services to provide a really warm welcome to our passengers and crews," she said.
"This shows that these measures, including our bespoke website and the Kent Cruise Welcome Desk, are greatly appreciated and adding value to everyone's cruise experience. Cruises make a significant contribution to the Kent economy and this is a market which is continuing to grow year on year."

Kate O'Hara, head of commercial and marketing at the Port of Dover, also welcomed the news.

She said: "Dover's investment in state-of-the-art cruise facilities, excellent transport links and award-winning customer service is paying dividends and there are already indications that we will be breaking all records with cruise

"Working with the Kent Cruise Partnership is enabling us to extend our reputation for excellent service beyond the boundaries of the port."

Dover port is hosting the UK Cruise Convention from tomorrow to Friday.

No plans for club interior

"It's all gone to ruin now, though it's a carbuncle in our town.
"I'm pleased to hear that JD

Wetherspoon is going to smarten the place up. It shows that if we keep pushing, things do happen." Despite work starting on the exterior, no plans are yet in place to turn the building into a Wetherspoon pub. A spokesman for the chain said:

"At the moment there are no plans to do anything to the interior.

"We would first have to look at what work needed to be done to make the inside safe. There is no set timetable for this at the moment."

The Granada Cinema opened in the 1930s and in 1960 became ABC, closing down in the early 1980s.

It later became Snoops nightclub but closed several years ago.

Two planning applications put in by the pub chain were withdrawn and it has since stood empty.

Crew ale and hearty

THE crew of the Dover Lifeboat has received a cheque for £200 from the Campaign for Real Ale. _Martin Atkins, chairman of the Deal, Dover, Sandwich and district branch, presented the cheque alongside Dave Green, the organiser of the Winter Ales Festival, where the money was raised.

Asbo-breaker gets 300 days in prison

BOOZERS are being warned by Kent Police to behave themselves or get banned from the district's town

Lager louts could even end up behind bars if they persistently cause trouble.

The harsh warning from police comes after a 20-year-old man from Deal was sentenced to 300 days in prison for breaching an Anti Šocial Behaviour Order given to him for drink-related offences

Warning

Aaron Revell, of Leivers Road, was given the Asbo earlier this year following a disturbance at a pub and he was subsequently banned from Deal town centre at night.

He was arrested again in Cavell Square on May 16 for failing to appear before Folkestone magistrates in April and also for failing to return on bail for an offence of him breaching his Asbo.

After a violent struggle with officers he was detained and pleaded guilty on May 18 to assaulting two constables, obstructing a constable, possession of an offensive weapon, possession of cannabis and breaching his Asbo.

He received 150 days in prison, and a suspended sentence of 150 days was reactivated resulting in a 300-day sentence.

Sgt Guy Thompson, of the community safety unit, said this should deter others from causing trouble in

He said: "We will continue to target the minority of people who cause a nuisance and this serves as a warning that if they do they can expect to face the consequences."

Revell was the third person to be awarded an Asbo through the Three Strikes scheme which was introduced to the Dover district in 2005.

It is being led by the community safety unit and Dover Partnership Against Crime and involves licensees and Dover District Council.

Yellow cards are issued to people who commit an offence while under the influence of alcohol, warning them of their behaviour and offering advice about alcohol abuse.

If they commit a further offence in a rolling 12-month period, a red card is issued and they are excluded from premises that sell alcohol.

Any more offences then result in the risk of an Asbo, which bans them from town centres in the evenings.

PREPARATIONS are well under way to celebrate 100 years since Louis Blériot's historic first Channel flight and it's good that we will mark the event in July. However, cast your mind back to 1998, the 89th anniversary.

That was significant because Blériot's grandson Louis, then 54, attempted to re-enact his ancestor's historic moment, in a replica Blériot XI.

I was in France at dawn on Sunday, July 26, 1998, to see the attempt fail spectacularly.

The monoplane had been sat under a gazebo in a field to be admired for almost two days and nights before the weather was deemed perfect for the attempt.

Hundreds of people had been allowed to poke and prod the aircraft for the previous 48 hours and at the time I remember thinking had this been England we would not been allowed quite so close.

It was, as I recall, around 6am in a field a couple of hundred yards from the beach (now called Blériot-Plage) that hundreds gathered to see the take-off. The 'young' Blériot clambered into the cockpit and accelerated

BY GARY WRIGHT

across a field away from the sea, into the wind. He lifted off, climbed 100ft or so, then banked right, turning toward the sea.

And he just continued banking right, effectively spiralling toward the ground and disappearing behind a grass ridge.

I dashed a couple of hundred yards across the field, overtaking shocked French spectators, to the top of the ridge expecting to see a splattered mess.

Instead I saw Bleriot in a huge square lake (some described it as a pond) clambering out.

He had an advantage over his grandfather: the plane was stuffed with polystyrene to ensure it floated had he ditched in the Channel.

He never got that far. An undignified end to a brave attempt and I remember feeling sorry for this adventurer as he sat in a lake on the tailpiece waiting to be rescued.

Let's hope the Swedish pilot who will attempt the same feat on the memorial weekend is more successful... and he keeps the public away from his replica.

EXACTLY what flashed through the mind of Louis Blériot as he approached the white cliffs of Dover in 1909 piloting his primitive monoplane is hard to say. Most likely it was a mix of elation at being the first to make the Channel crossing in an aircraft and also relief his frail flying machine held together just long enough to make the journey.

The intrepid French inventor and adventurer had put everything on the line to make the 22-mile crossing from Le Barraques near Calais, which marked a massive milestone in the advancement of aviation.

As the son of a wealthy fabric manufacturer, he had sunk an untold fortune into developing a series of planes. His own extensive resources were amassed through creating car headlamps, and the engineering skills he learnt in Paris led him to investigate glider-flying.

Construction

After producing eight powered flight prototypes of varying success, he devised the wire-framed Blériot XI which would see him across the Channel. Its lightweight construction meant it could be easily taken apart and prepared for flight in about 30 minutes. This gave it the edge over fierce rivals the Wright Brothers, whose planes were reportedly taking five or six hours to ready.

AMBITIOUS: Louis Blériot took 37 minutes to cross the Channel in his monoplane in 1909

In the world of aviation, it seems the old adage that 'money talks' is as true as it is with any industry. Blériot was spurred on to challenge the Channel by a competition in the Daily Mail newspaper which was offering £1,000 to whoever could achieve the Channel-hopping feat.

How hard could it possibly be?

challenge of

Given that the Channel had already been crossed by a hydrogen balloon as long ago as 1785 by American doctor John Jeffries, it seemed a realistic goal.

So when you consider just how much the prize money was in today's terms (around £100,000), it's not hard to understand Blériot's motivation.

But he was not alone in his ambitions - a fellow Frenchman (of English birth) Hubert Latham tried his hand at the task but crashed mid-Channel and the other contender, French-born aristocrat Charles de Lambert, was injured during test flights.

Proving just what a risky business it was, Blériot himself had burnt his foot when one of his test planes crashed.

However, with single-minded determination, the 37-year-old pilot set off at about 4.30am on July 25 in his fragile-looking plane that rattled out 25 horse-power from its threecylinder engine.

He faced numerous challenges en route, including rain, wind and poor visibility, which almost took him off his course entirely.

He reported in a telegram to the Washington Post after losing sight of the French destroyer that had been assigned to follow his progress that "I am alone. I can see nothing at all. For ten minutes I am lost".

With more than a little fortune he regained his bearings and made a relatively clean landing in a time of 37 minutes.

His achievement was to prove the launchpad for an influential career that saw him produce more than 800 aircraft before the First World War, though a number of these were found to have faults.

Business

Ironing out these glitches, he was commissioned to provide more than 5,000 military aircraft for Allied forces during the First World War.

He is also regarded as a pioneer of sports aviation as many wealthy businessmen clamoured to get their hands on his planes for recreational flying. This led to him setting up several flight schools in England.

By the time of his retirement from flying in 1927, he was on hand to congratulate Charles Lindbergh on his transatlantic flight which took the aviation industry even farther across our skies.

Many have attempted to follow in the footsteps of Blériot's feat, including a reenactment attempt in 1998 by his grandson.

The year following Blériot's success, John Bevins Moisant became the first person to carry passengers on a plane across the Channel. But the first woman to fly across, Harriet Quimby, on April 16, 1912, received little media coverage as the Titanic had sunk the evening before.

Fast-forward a century and you'll still take a similar amount of time as Blériot to traverse the Channel in around half an hour via the Channel Tunnel.

It may not have quite the same romanticism as the flight pioneer's mode of transport, but it's surely a lot more comfortable than the cramped cockpit of an early-20th-century monoplane with a reputation for hard landings.

Rather impressively, the original Blériot XI plane still survives and is on display at the Musée des Arts et Métiers in Paris and a host of activities has been organised on both sides of the Channel to mark the 100th anniversary of the crossing.

sary of the crossing.

To celebrate the anniversary, the Channel Hop joint initiative has been created between Kent County Council and the Pasde-Calais Conseil Général.

It includes events in both regions such as discovery trails for French and English schoolchildren, art exhibitions and guided walks.

Among the celebrations on offer for aircraft fans will be this weekend's Big Event in Margate, featuring a range of air displays, live music and fairground attractions.

Plans are also in place for a historic air show and firework display in Dover on the weekend of July 25-26. This includes re-enactments from Blériot XI planes and an RAF flypast.

A DAMNING audit report revealing alleged misconduct at Deal Town Council has been

Troubled council:

The decision by Bill Gardner, the Mayor of Deal, follows months of pressure from local Tories and Liberal Democrats to publish the document in full.

Cllr Gardner has repeatedly defended his policy of keeping the report under wraps, citing legal issues and solicitors' advice not to publish the document until an unfair dismissal claim by former deputy town clerk Stella Leitner was dealt with.

But last week, councillors agreed to settle at a £20,000 payment to Mrs Leitner, allowing the mayor to release the document.

Negotiations are now under way with insurers to find out how much of that figure the council must pay.

Cllr Gardner said: "As the Mayor of Deal, I have over the last three months come under a lot of criticism which I believe has been totally unfair and unreasonable over my handling of the East Kent Audit Report into the running of Deal Town Council following the resignation of our previous deputy town clerk.

"A lot of people asked me to release this report even though they knew this was legally impossible... When a councillor or the mayor receives legal advice, he or she must act on it. Ignoring or going against such advice is at the least unadvisable.

"With regards to Stella, I got on very well with her - she was a good, efficient member of staff and I'm sorry she felt forced to leave."

Cllr Gardner has published the document which highlights the activities of a number of Labour councillors and the town clerk - on the council website www.deal.gov.uk under the heading EKAP Report 2009.

It is also available at Deal Library.

QUESTION & ANSWER CHRISTOPHE SANTONI

Now did you first get involved with LD Lines?

A I joined parent company LDA [Louis Dreyfus Armateurs Group] in 2003 to set up LD Lines as a new diversification in the liner business

Our first ambition was to develop a liner roll-on/roll-off activity as a logical continuation of our development in the roll-on/roll-off business with the contract we'd just signed with Airbus Industrie for the carriage of the parts of their new A380 model.

The last few months have been very busy with the launch of the new services and then the announcement of a fast-ferry. How are you feeling about LD Lines progress on the Channel routes?

The expansion of LD Lines on the Channel has been rapid. We've had opportunities along the way, such as the takeover of the Dieppe/Newhaven service and the new ferry terminal in Boulogne, that we decided to grasp, as getting access and slots in Channel ports is not something that happens easily.

One of our strong points is our ability to take quick decisions and invest money to implement several developments at the same time.

What do you think makes LD Lines different from other ferry services on the Dover Strait?

LD Lines is today the only ferry company to provide services both on the Western Channel and now the Dover Strait.

We believe that providing an extended network to our freight and passenger customers represents a major advantage, as it allows them to choose from an extensive network of routes with the flexibility to mix and alternate their travel arrangements.

LD Lines will become the first company to introduce the first high-speed craft on the Dover Strait capable of carrying freight and tourist traffic. For the first time, high-speed craft will be able to rely on both freight and passenger sectors, making its business model different from previous fast-ferry operators.

Last but not least, passengers and road hauliers will now be offered a choice to cross the Channel in a very competitive time compared with Eurotunnel.

Are you confident that in the current economy it will continue to flourish?

Present economic conditions represent a major challenge for the whole ferry industry, and obviously for LD Lines as well. Such difficult trading periods require and create opportunities for innovation and competitiveness in our opinion, and this is exactly what LD Lines is trying to do.

What is the hardest part of your job as managing director of the company?

I can't really complain about my job as I Ind the present period very exciting and challenging. Most difficult is probably to make sure that the LD Lines organisation is adapting permanently in a way that it can cope with the growing activity of the company.

What is the best thing about being managing director of 🕊 a company like LD Lines?

Definitely the variety of tasks and the human contact with a wide range of people.

What is the next step for the company and are there any noteworthy plans for the year ahead?

We want to establish our new concept of A high-speed craft for passengers and freight and develop it further.

How do you think LD Lines can benefit Dover?

LD Lines is developing a new concept that can be beneficial to Dover to further increase its competitive appeal compared with Eurotunnel. There is no doubt that shipping needs innovation to be able to compete with other modes of transport and we sincerely believe that this next generation of high-speed craft will further enhance our new concept.

 For more information about crossings with LD Lines, or to book a trip, visit www.ldlines.co.uk, or call 0844 576 8836 for tourists, or 0844 576 8837 for freight. LD Lines runs daily crossings from Dover to Dieppe and from Dover to Boulogne. The high-speed craft will run from Dover to Boulogne.

The managing director of ferry company LD Lines talks to Nick Ames about the perks of the job, plus how his high-speed craft will change the face of Channel-hopping and give travellers an alternative to Eurotunnel

Landlord's high hopes for Scarecrow of the South

BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

A 100ft statue dubbed the Scarecrow of the South could soon be welcoming visitors to Romney Marsh and be seen as far away as

Based on legendary fictional smuggler Dr Syn, the prospective landmark could be south Kent's answer to Mark Wallinger's White Horse monument to be built at Ebbsfleet – which has been called the Angel of the South.

This would see Kent have two new tourist attractions to bring in visitors.

The statue project is the brainchild of pub landlord and author Niko Miaoulis and artist Terry Anthony, who together have continued to promote the character inspired by Russell Thorndike's novels.

The idea is still in its early stages, but land has already been set aside for the statue at Haguelands Farm and informal discussions are taking place with Shepway council.

Mr Anthony, whose paintings of Dr Syn have been used in novels and DVD covers, said the idea came about when he and Niko were discussing how best to refurbish the 500-year-old Ship Inn.

He said: "We were talking about creating a smuggling theme in the pub and there was a suggestion of a statue outside the entrance and it just grew from there.

"Using statues as huge pieces of art seems to be in vogue at the moment and it's just what the marsh needs. It's not a rival to the horse in Ebbsfleet – that's a long way away from here – but it would be an incredible draw.

"It is an unusual idea. I'm pretty sure there will be objections, but 90 per cent of the people I've spoken to think it's wonderful.'

STRIKING: A Scarecrow of the South could join the planned White Horse to decorate the county's skyline Landlord Mr Miaoulis, who has relaunched the Ship Inn as a shrine to the Dr Syn myth, "The story is firmly rooted in local history. The character itself can be traced back to the 1700s and is an amalgam of three different people.

"The idea just snowballed and there's been a huge groundswell of support.

The geography of the marsh lends itself to it. We can already see pylons and wind turbines, which are not exactly pretty, but this would be something meaningful for the marsh.

"It would be a very public monument and will probably even be seen from France.'

Initial estimates suggest the statue could be 60ft-100 ft high but would not dominate the landscape in the same way as the wind turbines or pylons. By comparison, a turbine is about 400 ft in height. The statue would be made out of black stainless steel to withstand all weathers, with the maize maze site at Haguelands Farm touted as a possible location.

Mr Anthony said last year's DVD release of Disney's 1964 film of the story, which starred Patrick McGoohan, had generated even more interest in the character's mythology.

He said: "If they commission a remake, it would be the icing on the cake. I'm not sure how they would do it, but the scarecrow could be silhouetted and would make for a fabulous backdrop.'

Leading London theatre producer Mark Sinden and Chris Hogben, star of TV's Bargain Hunt, have also thrown their support behind the project.

BBC bids farewell to Bev and Geoff

BBC South East Today has axed its two presenters – Geoff Clark and Beverly Thompson.
The duo had presented the weekday news programme from studios in Tunbridge Wells for the last five years.

But last week they were told they were to be replaced by the younger duo of Polly Evans and Rob Smith.

Evans and Rob Smith.

Mr Clark (right) – who moved to the BBC from Meridian in 2004 and is credited with transforming its viewing figures – will not have his contract extended when it expires in October. Mrs Thompson will remain with the programme in a different capacity. Both are said to be upset by the decision.

The BBC's head of region, Mick Rawsthorne, said: "We know viewers will miss Bev and Geoff and I can assure the audience this decision was not taken lightly. Both are excellent presenters in their own right and their warm, engaging, humorous partnership has been the backbone of the programme for five years.

"There have been some fabulous moments and I really want to thank them for all their hard work.

"This move represents a development of the programme which covers an area that sits at the heart of some of today's biggest

"Our audiences tell us they want to see the big news stories affecting the region and these changes reflect the more journalistic approach that viewers are asking for in today's climate."

South East Today TV editor Quentin Smith said: "Both Rob and Polly are already known to viewers as much for their professionalism in reporting as for their presenting abilities.

They have both developed their skills here at South East Today, and while I know Bev and Geoff will be a hard act to follow, we hope viewers will take Rob and Polly to their hearts.'

Support local producers at one-stop website

THE success of the farmers' market is once again underlining the importance and popularity of buying fresh local and in-season produce. These values lie at the very heart of KOS Media's 2009 campaign.

Spearheaded by our www.foodfor kent.co.uk website - which brings together a host of the county's top suppliers under one online roof- we are urging our readers to support local growers and suppliers. Not only does this boost the local economy and protect jobs and our rural heritage, but the food tastes great and contains all the nutrients and vitamins we need to stay fit and healthy.

What's more, you'll find an awful lot of the time, the prices of the goods available make it cheaper than a trip to your local supermarket.

Buy fresh from growers at garden centre event

A FARMERS' market will be held at McFarlane's Garden Centre, Swingfield, on the A269 near Folkestone, from 10am to 2pm today (Wednesday). Entry is free.

Call 01304 844244 for more details.

THE popular Elham Farmers' Market will celebrate its first anniversary this weekend with a slice of birthday cake for everyone.

The market has offered seasonal produce from local growers to villagers and visitors twice a month for the past year and has been a roaring success.

The anniversary will be marked with balloons, applebobbing for children and a piece of cake for all visitors, from Gatehouse Farm in North Elham.

Sunday will also see the first visit of Fish from Hastings and Rye, selling a selection of locally-caught wet and smoked fish.

The market's popularity has soared in its first 12 months and has attracted a loyal following on the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

Folkestone-born TV chef Phil Vickery has been a supporter of the market from day one, not just because he began his culinary journey by working at the Rose and Crown pub in the village.

He said: "Congratulations to the local producers for providing such a range of high-quality goods and to the shoppers for recognising and appreciating the value of good seasonal local food produced by people who care."

Each market has about a dozen stalls boasting pork, lamb, beef, game, breads, fruit and veg, flowers, plants, and vegetable seeds, cakes, pies, curries, jams, chutneys, eggs, apple juice, cheese, olives and fish. It takes place from 10.30am to 12.30pm at the Rose and Crown.

Anne Leva, Elham Farmers' market manager, said: 'Throughout this first year, we have achieved our aims of providing locally-produced food for the benefit of consumers and producers.

"Elham Farmers' Market is a popular place for shoppers to meet and buy quality, local food at fair prices.

"It helps the environment by reducing food miles and encourages healthy eating by making fresh, high-quality food available in season and at realistic prices.

June markets are the best time to discover the tastes of early summer. The first Kentish fruit is available, so strawberries and gooseberries can replace rhubarb on the menu. Asparagus is still around, but young broad beans, peas and new potatoes can be enjoyed with new

Calling the tune boosts cancer charity funds

A MUSIC school has raised £700 for Macmillan Cancer at its annual concert.

All Sorts Of Music, in Ham, held the show at St Mary's Church, Sandwich, where students as young as four took to the stage.

A host of world-class performers also got involved, giving their time for free in aid of the charity.

Director Kate Griffin, who opened the school just over a year ago, said she was thrilled with how it all went.

"I am so pleased to have raised money for Macmillan. Cancer has affected my family, some of our students and friends of our students," she said.

"It was lovely to see our students perform, to see how some have progressed and to see some of our new students perform.

"Despite the hard work involved, I now can't wait for next year's concert."

During the concert, ten promising students were awarded medals for their achievements, while Natasha Williams, aged 11,

A world of difference at Olympics show

A VARIETY show has been held at St Edmund's Catholic School in Dover to celebrate the cultural diversity of the Olympics.

The school is one of many in Kent championing the Olympic ideal of Five Rings, Oe World, which aims to capture the international and cultural aspect of the games.

The Around The World show began with a film from year ten students Marc Thorp, Ashley and Connor Pound showing interviews with staff and pupils about what the Olympics means to them.

Different styles of dance and music from around the world were then presented and year 12 student Louise Orfila and year 13 Flora Bainbridge wowed the crowd with singing performances.

The second half of the show saw pupils from St Richard's Catholic School dancing to Jai Ho from Slumdog Millionaire. Teachers also got involved during the finale with an Abba medley and a performance of the New Zealand All Blacks' Maori Haka challenge.

Archers Court is to serve up a celebration

TECHNOLOGY students at Archers Court Maths and Computing College are getting ready to showcase their work at a celebration evening at the school.

Catering students will prepare food for the event on Thursday, June 25, and serve guests. What is the point of teams like Andorra playing on the international stage?

Give football's minnow nations a little World Cup of their own

THE England v Andorra qualifying match for next year's World Cup was a nice little run out for our top players, who are now all away on a beach somewhere.

And they left in style -6-0 was a good result even if their opponents were really nothing more that an average non-league team.

They would probably turn over Ashford or Folkestone – but I think Dover Athletic might be a bit too much for them.

And, as the argument goes, you can only beat the opposition you are set up against.

But the question remains, should nations such as England even be playing against the likes of Andorra?

The same night as England triumphed, the Faroe Islands were in action and got away with a 2-0 home defeat to Serbia.

Malta played as well and lost 4-0 to Sweden. Not in action were such giants of the European game as San Marino – actually ranked at 191 in the world, just below Bhutan and Macau, various offshoots of the old Asian part of the USSR and even places such as Luxembourg, who have always played in European qualification to no avail whatsoever.

But I don't feel smaller nations should be deprived of the chance to play in the World Cup.

Cricket and rugby have offered the ideal solution. Have a preliminary tournament, with these countries in a group on their own. San Marino v Malta might be competitive. At least the players from both sides would improve in proper games, not one-sided massacres.

They would learn to play together and attack – not just pack their own penalty area and try to foul anyone who makes a run at them.

And if enough of these groups – such as another one for the Eastern Europeans – could be set up, the winners of each could play off.

Then the winners of a sort of minnows world cup could have a shot at qualification for the tournament itself by playing the third-placed team in Oceania, or the fourth best side in Asia, or the runners-up from North America.

That way they would actually have a realistic chance of playing in the finals themselves.

Fans of mid-ranking countries may find this unfair, but at least the likes of Belarus, Norway and Latvia can compete against Italy, Holland and Germany.

This appears so sensible, I wonder why it isn't done.

Oh yes, I realise now.

Money.

Every match played is a chance to get in a crowd to sell replica shirts, burgers and hotdogs and have the TV rights haggled over.

Also there is the vote – every country has one, so I don't suppose the Maltese FA will miss out on the odd money-spinner against France.

But a look at the wider picture might see their football progress to a point where it is worthwhile them playing the game and not getting thrashed every time they take the field.

The founder of east Kent company Virtual Girl Friday talks about the need to tackle the admin tasks that just won't go away

Tell us a little about yourself

I'm 25 and I have recently set up a virtual PA and lifestyle management company called Virtual Girl Friday, which is aimed at SMEs and sole traders in south-east Kent. Virtual Girl Friday offers a remote PA and office manager service – a cross between a PA, a project manager and a lifestyle concierge.

What gave you the inspiration for Virtual Girl Friday? It was an idea I had several months ago when I found I had modernised all the procedures in my current job.

Everything was running sufficiently without me there on a full-time basis and I realised that many SMEs could benefit from part-time or ad hoc administrative support. In my years as an in-house PA and office manager, I have noticed that outdated processes, mounting paperwork and ever-growing to-do lists only serve to cause the owners of small businesses to stress.

Ultimately, admin can keep them away from doing whatever it was they went into businesses for in the first place. That's where a virtual PA comes in: in the current economic climate, no business-owner wants to take on new administrative members of staff and many, sadly, have to cut back on those they already employ. However, admin tasks take no notice of economic downturn – they will always be there. In outsourcing to Virtual Girl Friday, you avoid PAYE, National Insurance and other overheads such as office space, equipment and holiday and sickness pay – perfect for small businesses in a recession.

Mob denying us right to choose

I consider myself to be a fairminded, liberal person, and as an atheist I certainly do not share the same 'right-wing Christian' values as the BNP's Nick Griffin MEP

But whether I like it or not, he is a democratically-elected member of the European Parliament and he was not the first MEP to speak to the Press in front of the Westminster Parliament.

Neither was he the first politician to be targeted by a mob that appears to be afraid of the democratic principle known as free speech.

After all, Mr Griffin was not even talking about the taboo subjects of illegal immigration or Islamic extremism

I would like to know where the egg-throwing mob known as the UAF (United Against Fairplay?) was when a group of Islamic extremists was protesting against British soldiers who had come home from Iraq.

Where were they when Gerry Adams, leader of Sinn Féin, spoke in the very same Westminster spot as Mr Griffin

Where were they when a very brave Peter Tatchell stood up to Robert Mugabe's mob?

I don't agree with Mr Griffin's politics any more than I agree with the views of other elected party leaders such as Mr Adams and George Galloway.

However, all of these three men are democratically-elected politicians. It seems to me that rent-a-mob wants to deny the electorate the right to choose.

It appears that the UAF would be more at home in the former East Germany, where the state would provide them with everything from the shoes on their feet to the thoughts in their heads.

I don't believe in all that new world order stuff, but we really do need to be concerned about this undemocratic, self-righteous bunch who call themselves protesters.

Plans for new cross-Channel services from Dover and increased profits predicted for the existing ones are all very well – but when is someone going to take the plunge and put Folkestone back on the cross-Channel map?

Go back to university to relive the fun

Are you a graduate of the University of Leicester? If so, the university would like to invite you back on to campus for the 2009 Homecoming on Saturday, June 27.

There is no need to register – simply turn up on the day. There are many reasons to revisit your alma mater, including renewing friendships and visiting old haunts.

This summer, as part of the campus redevelopment plan, the Percy Gee Building will undergo a major transformation to create one of the best Students' Union facilities in the UK – this weekend will be your last chance to have a pint at the Redfearn Bar, and take home your own piece of history as we auction everything off.

We will also offer plenty to keep the children busy, including a free packed lunch for under-12s. Even if you can't attend but would like to stay in touch, please email us on alumni.relations@le.ac.uk.

The day will also include tours of the campus – for details see www.homecoming.percygee.org

Raise money to help us to stop meningitis

My daughter Alexia fell ill with meningitis just over two years ago.

Doctors said that had she been treated any later then chances were she would have died.

Thankfully, she received expert care and made a full recovery, much to our relief and amazement.

She's now a bright five-year-old and not a day goes by when I don't feel lucky to have her.

It's heartbreaking to know that hundreds of people die from meningitis and thousands more are left with devastating after-effects.

I want to use my 15 minutes of fame from The Apprentice to achieve something positive, which is why I'm taking this opportunity to raise awareness of the disease.

I'm proud to support the work of Meningitis UK and its mission to eradicate meningitis completely.

eradicate meningitis completely. Its Search 4 a Vaccine Campaign hopes to raise £7 million to help fund research to develop a vaccine against meningitis B, which causes almost 90 per cent of UK cases.

The number 4 signifies the devastating fact that meningitis can kill in under four hours.

As my experience shows, knowing the symptoms and seeking prompt treatment can make a vital difference to the outcome.

However, sadly, sometimes even if the symptoms are recognised, prompt treatment sought and the best medical care is given, it is still not enough to save a life.

This is why finding a vaccine is so important for future generations.

In the absence of a vaccine, Meningitis UK distributes a range of material to raise awareness of the common symptoms and the need to act quickly.

I would urge readers to make a donation to the Search 4 a Vaccine Campaign, or request a symptoms information pack, by calling Meningitis UK on 0117 373 7373 or visiting www.meningitisuk.org.

Don't miss Big Event weekend fun on the isle

MAGNIFICENT men in their flying machines will be entertaining the crowds at Margate's Big Event this weekend.

Billed as Kent's leading land and air festival, the two-day event will make the perfect Father's Day treat, with lots of aerial thrills and spills on offer. If spectators look to the sky, they will see some of the best flyers in the world performing for their entertainment.

The world's premier aerobatic team, the Red Arrows, will be paying a flying visit to demonstrate the breathtaking stunts that have made them such an unmissable treat. The Red Arrows were formed in 1965, following many years of all RAF training schools having their own aerobatic display teams. In 1964 the RAF decided to form a single, full-time professional team, which was first formed by the Red Pelicans flying six Jet Provost T Mk 4s.

Later that year they were succeeded by five yellow Folland Gnat jet trainers, known as the Yellowjacks, before the Red Arrows - officially known as the Royal Air Force Aerobatic Team - was formed at RAF Fairford in Gloucestershire the following year.

Other planned aerial displays include the poignant Battle of Britain Memorial Flight, RAF Typhoon jets and more aerobatic delights from the Aerostars.

Come back down to earth in the nicest possible way with the fantastic entertainment lined up on land. Rock out to classic Queen hits during the spectacular music show, They Will Rock You, which pays tribute to a number of iconic music stars on Saturday night. This authentic performance of Queen's legendary live concert also features guest stars 'Tina Turner' and the Magic of the Bee Gees. A thrilling firework finale will round off Saturday's entertainment in explosive style.

With street entertainers, a funfair and live music on offer, this year's Big Event looks set to be even bigger than ever. Refreshments will be available in the beer tent and food and drink village, while kids will be amused by the children's entertain-

To help people reach the action, a free shuttle bus will be running from Margate railway station to Palm Bay during the event. Parking is available opposite the site, priced at £5, while those who choose to arrive on two wheels can reach the site using the Viking Cycle Trail.

The event runs from 10am to 10pm on Saturday and 10.30am to 6pm on Sunday, with a different programme of attractions each day. Treat Dad to a special Father's Day lunch in the VIP hospitality area on Sunday for themed events continue.

To commemorate the 500th anniversary of Henry VIII's ascension to the throne, the castle is hosting a month of family events that are both fun and educational. This weekend visitors can find out how the royal household would have got ready for the arrival of their master, a big occasion that required much

Learn more about the extravagant feast that would have been laid on for the returning monarch and discover the dress code for such a momentous event. Entertainers will perform the music and dance that would have marked King Henry VIII's return, while the Tudor Cavalry will be busily practising their skills at arms display. Next weekend's final event, All The King's Guns, will explore Henry VIII's huge collection of firepower.

Tickets cost £10 for adults, £8 for conces-

WALMER AND DEAL CASTLES

Sunday, June 21 Walmer and Deal Castles

Celebrate Father's Day somewhere unusual and enjoy a day exploring the fascinating coastal forts built by King Henry VIII. To celebrate the 500th anniversary of Henry VIII's ascension to the throne, dads are being invited to visit the castles for free and discover them with their families.

At Walmer Castle (pictured) visitors can look around the reception rooms which are just as they were when used by the Queen Mother. See the Duke of Wellington's bedroom with his campaign bed and famous Wellington boots.

The young at heart will have a ball exploring Deal Castle's eerie underground passages, lower storerooms and first floor captain's residence. Visitors can enjoy the beachfront views from what is considered one of the finest Tudor artillery castles in England.

Admission to Walmer Castle costs £6.70/£5.70 for adults, £3.40 for children and £16.80 for families. Entry to Deal Castle costs £4.30/£3.70 for adults, £2.20 for children and £10.80 for families. Entry is free for fathers, English Heritage members and under-fives at both sites.

JIM DAVIDSON

Thursday, June 18 Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone

CONTROVERSIAL comedian Jim Davidson is On The Offensive again with his new stand-up show.

Although his outrageous material has sometimes provoked controversy, Davidson remains one of the UK's most popular comics and routinely sells out his tours. On The Offensive should be no exception, offering more of the no holds barred-style humour that has made him such a successful enter-

Davidson was a hit with viewers of TV talent show New Faces in the 70s and went on to become a popular family entertainer, hosting game shows Big Break and The Generation Game.

Davidson has been awarded Showbusiness Personality of the Year accolades by the Variety Club of Great Britain, the Grand Order of Water Rats and Comic Heritage. He has received an OBE for his services for charity, including his work as founder of the troops on active service overseas.

British Forces Foundation, and On The Offensive was premiered in front of British

The show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £20 each or £30 for two. To book, phone the box office on 0844 847 1776, or visit www.leascliffhall.org.uk.

Beautiful Bohemia

THE mention of Bohemia might have plenty of people in the UK – including even some seasoned travellers – scratching their heads and reaching for the map of Europe.

But after a visit to historic Prague, the capital of the Czech Republic, I found it a great place to escape the hustle and bustle — all within a 90-minute drive from the city and its airport.

From the converted 300-year-old farmhouse where we stayed in the village of Ujzed on the edge of the Sumava National Park, we could walk all day through woods, hills and fields, seeing hardly another soul.

seeing hardly another soul.

For real outdoor enthusiasts, it's possible to mountain-bike for more than 30 miles on undisturbed trails as far as the German border.

Two hours after leaving our farmhouse retreat, a walk brought us to the former silvermining village of Hory Matla Boz – it means Mountains of the Mother of God – where our host, guide and interpreter Richard Eccles took us into the local inn, the sort of place where time seems to have stood still.

I enjoyed a simple rustic meal of the delicious local soup kulajda, made of milk, cream, eggs, potato, cumin and dill, that arrived in a huge bowl and cost about 50 pence a head. It was washed down with a pint of beer costing about 65 pence.

The area's rich history is celebrated with joy in the fairytale town of Cesky Krumlov, about a 90-minute drive from the Ujzed farmhouse

Painstakingly-renovated houses and cottages line the winding cobbled streets, squares and courtyards of what is hailed as one of the best-preserved Renaissance towns in Europe, together with one of the world's best two 17-century baroque the-

We ate in the welcoming cavern-like basement of the Satlav restaurant, where a huge barbecue grill warms the air.

Traditional garlic soup comes with a loaf of bread serving as its bowl (£1.50), while the main course of pecene koleno – roasted pork knee, with mustard, horseradish, bread and potato pancakes (£6.50) – could just about feed a family of four.

Beer fans will love Bohemia. The famous Pilsner Urquell brewery in Pilzen, producing beer for more than 170 years, offers informative guided tours and has an excellent museum nearby with its own pub attached.

We were taken to the Modra Hvezda Hotel in the picturesque town of Dobrany, where master brewer Petr Petrulasek, 42, single-handedly and lovingly produces 40,000 litres of ale a year, all of it drunk in the hotel and restaurant's own bars.

At 11am the wood-panelled bar and dining rooms, dominated by the copper brewing vats, were almost full with workers taking their traditional early lunch.

Petr produces his list of beers, ranging from a modest 3.8 per cent strength to an alarming 9 per cent special Christmas ale, and suggests we taste them all in turn. We opt for a more modest programme, bearing in mind the time of day.

He saw us on our way with a glass of his speciality pivni palenka – a spirit distilled from one of his beers with a strength of 50 per cent. Fortunately, we had a driver.

Joanne has been in business for just under a year. She trained as a nurse but was drawn to the world of alternative health seven years ago.

After moving to Hythe she saw a gap in the alternative health market two years ago and set up in business.

The business offers several unique treatments, bespoke products and brands not available elsewhere, such as Suki, Whish, Laidbare, Relax Kids and Mohdoh, to name just a few.

Everything needed for the mind, body and soul is on offer.

A hot stone massage and Thai herb compress massage are currently very popular, as they are very difficult to get locally.

The business is celebrating its first birthday throughout July with 25 per cent off all treatments.

A loyalty scheme, discount on block bookings and monthly discounts are also available, as are gift vouchers.

YOUR TV REVIEW

BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

STAND-UP comedy has made a triumphant reappearance on Saturday night prime-time TV thanks to awardwinning funny-man Michael McIntyre.

The 32-year-old's meteoric rise has been confirmed with his fronting of the new variation on the Live at the Apollo format.

The first of the series was held in Edinburgh, with McIntyre's pseudocamp posturing proving a good foil for his light-hearted mockery of Scottish culture. His parody of everything Celtic, from Scotch egg to Scotch tape, went down well when he put on the brusque, Braveheart-inspired accent, as did his skit on wearing tartan kilts and sporrans.

He gave way to the first of four guest acts, Glasgow-born Kevin Bridges whose measured delivery to stretch out the jokes was good but fortunate in that it lasted only ten minutes.

He was followed by Stewart Francis and Mark Watson, who were much wittier and sharper in their observation, topped by Rhod Gilbert, arguably the most well-known of the line-up alongside McIntyre.

Sean Lock, Al Murray and Patrick Kielty are among the other guest comedians scheduled to appear this series, in what should make for good entertainment.

Britain's Got Talent victim Susan Boyle has barely been out of rehab five minutes when another load of hapless wannabes have hit our screens.

Just ten minutes into the first episode of America's Got Talent, I decide, categorically, that I am never going to the USA. It's not just the cheesiness of judge David Hasslehoff or the baying, screeching crowd. It's the absolute over-the-top feeling that encompasses everything American.

FUNNY GUY: Michael McIntyre is the host of BBC1's new comedy show on Saturday nights

I know the British version of the hit show is ridiculously edited to pull at the heart-strings, but at least the normality of Ant and Dec keeps your average viewer grounded.

In the first episode of AGT, it takes almost 15 minutes to introduce the judges with a tacky voiceover from Jerry Springer - a telling sign of what's to follow.

Attention is focused on Sharon Osbourne, Piers Morgan and David Hasselhoff - mainly as the contestants are so very uninspiring.

But so far, over a week into this show, I can honestly count the number of 'talented' people on one hand and Piers Morgan is somehow morphing into Simon Cowell as the 'scary' judge.

All he needs now is some highwaisted trousers.

Is it because of going unnoticed in a large school or a large class size?

Is your child lacking the confidence to flourish?

At Dover College, we are as keen as any other school to cater for the most able pupils and do it well. However, our recent inspection highlighted our great ability as a school to enable our more average pupils to achieve far better than their potential suggested on entry. By offering boys and girls timely affirmation and appropriate challenges in a caring environment, many of them surprise their parents and, more importantly, themselves with their achievements.

Pupils can join Dover College at any time of the year if there is a place available.

FEEDER

With 28 hit singles and 6 top ten albums, the mighty Feeder will be bringing the greatest hits from their multi-platinum selling back catalogue to the main stage at this year's Hevy Music Festival.

Feeder formed in Newport, South Wales in 1992 by songwriter Grant Nicholas (vocals, guitar) and Jon Lee (drums), later joined by bassist Taka Hirose. The group's debut studio album 'Polythene' (1997) won the accolade of Metal Hammer magazine's #1 album of the year. It produced five singles including the song "High" which became Feeder's UK Top 40 breakthrough. Their second album 'Yesterday Went Too Soon' (1999), was their first appearance in the top 10 charts.

Their third album 'Echo Park' (2001), spawned the hit single "Buck Rogers" and became their first gold certified album, followed by the platinum selling forth album 'Comfort in Sound' (2002).

Their fifth album 'Pushing the Senses' (2005), became the band's highest charting release peaking at #2 and spawned a headline appearance at the Download Festival. The album's chart peak was matched a year later in 2006 by their singles compilation, and gained the band another platinum certification in the UK. In June 2008, the band released their sixth album 'Silent Cry', followed by a main stage appearance at Reading and Leeds festivals, where they performed 3rd on the bill, before Metallica and Tenacious D.

ASH

First formed in 1992, childhood mates Tim Wheeler (guitar/vocals), Mark Hamilton (bass), and Rick "Rock" McMurray (drums) shared a love for the raw British punk of the Buzzcocks and crafted their musical talents to take the Brit-pop scene by storm at the start of the decade. NME was swooning over these 'teen punkers from Belfast', and by 1994 Ash had signed to Infectious Records to issue the Trailer EP later that fall.

Their glossy youth was undoubtedly alluring, yet their Irish roots exuded a bit of an American flair similar to the likes of Pavement and the Lemonheads. They weren't even out of high school before three singles hit the Top Five in the U.K. indie charts. A year later marked Ash's full-length debut with '1977'.

They were headlining major festivals - T in the Park, Glastonbury, Roskilde, and Reading - and playing countless club dates across the globe. Their next controversial album, 'Nu-Clear Sounds' (1998), had Garbage's Butch Vig (Smashing Pumpkins, Nirvana) at the mixing board which delivered a much darker record. 'Free All Angels' followed in April 2001, with 'Meltdown', the band's first stateside release for Record Collection, arriving in spring 2005. In 2007 the group released 'Twilight of the Innocents', the album they claimed would be their last.

Interestingly, however, they also assured their fans that they were not breaking up; instead, they would only release singles in response to consumer trends.

GARY NUMAN

An awe-inspiring career spanning over 30 years with 22 studio albums (3 No. 1s), 19 live albums and 59 hit singles, the 'Godfather of Electro' and true living legend Gary Numan will join the main stage line-up for a rare festival appearance at this year's Hevy Music Festival.

His first solo single 'Cars' spent weeks on the charts in 1980 and paved the way for an entirely new genre of 'alternative' music. That seminal track helped usher in the synth pop era on both sides of the Atlantic, where he was a genuine pop star and consistent hitmaker during the early '80s. Even after new wave had petered out, Numan's impact continued to make itself felt; his dark, paranoid vision, theatrically icy alien persona, and clinical, robotic sound were echoed strongly in the work of many goth rock and industrial artists to come.

Over the next few years, bands like 'Hole', 'Foo Fighters' and 'Smashing Pumpkins' covered Numan songs in concert, and 'Marilyn Manson' recorded 'Down in the Park' for the B-side of the 'Lunchbox' single. Furthermore, several modern rock bands including 'Nine Inch Nails' often cite Numan as an important influence.

With a guest appearance on cult TV phenomenon 'The Mighty Boosh', and bands including MGMT, Fouls, Late Of The Pier and Bloc Party bringing electronic music back into the mainstream once again, Numan has enjoyed a recent revival, and is often credited as being the 'Godfather of Electro'.

Why Heather's stripper role has a ring of truth

BY ELLIE GENOWER

SOME people say it must have been a pretty good party if you wake up the next morning with no memory of what happened the night before.

But piecing together events that took place in an alcoholic haze can be a painful process just ask the guys in Las Vegas-set comedy The Hangover.

Troublesome trio Phil (Bradley Cooper), Stu (Ed Helms) and Alan (Zach Galifianakis) wake up in their swanky Caesar's Palace hotel room after a stag night with no recollection of the previous evening.

There are a few clues: Stu's mysterious missing tooth, Phil's discovery of a baby in the wardrobe and Alan walking in on a tiger in the bathroom.

What's worse is that the boys have also lost Doug, their best friend and groom-to-be, and they have just 48 hours work out what happened and find Doug in time to make it back to Los Angeles for his wedding.

"A lot of people are going to relate to this movie," says Heather Graham, who plays a stripper in the comedy caper.

"Their night is just more horrible than you could have ever imagined."

Clearly, wild nights out aren't just confined to men, and you get the feeling the actress has had a few larger-than-life experiences of her

Indeed, she recalls ending up at a New York sado-masochistic dinner club on one hen night a few years back.

She say: "There's a menu which says 'you can be disciplined, you can be tied up, or you can spank or be spanked'. There was another bach-a girl."

Heather, wide-eyed, girly and giggly, doesn't appear 'dark' in the least. Perched on a chair in a garish Caesar's Palace hotel room, she looks cool and collected in navy blue La Roque shorts and a DKNY top, despite the searing Vegas heat outside.

much younger than her 39 years - which she puts down to eating healthy and three yoga sessions a week.

Having been linked with the likes of Ed Burns and Kyle MacLachlan in the past, Heather has now settled down with 32-yearold director Yaniv Raz.

"No, we're not engaged but we moved in together. It's fun." Marriage may not be on the cards yet, but she admits she is getting

"I was never really that interested (in babies), but recently I'm like 'hmmm, that could be fun'," she says. "I've definitely been thinking about it more lately. I love babies. They are really sweet and they make you happy. They're just such pure joy."

Company searches for Diverse talent

IF you're looking for a chance to break into the music industry, a company from Kent is offering a unique opportunity to push ahead with your dream.

The exciting project from Diverse Music could enable you to get involved in music in a way you hadn't before thought possible.

The company is looking for fresh new talent in the county and wants to hear from you.

Diverse is offering free audition slots to anyone who may have something to offer. The goal of the project is to create a talent bank of artists who could be put in touch with each other to share ideas or perform together. It could prove to be a hotbed of creativity, with the facilities and technology to put down professional tracks at the Diverse studio in Bilting, near Ashford, already in place. Bands, songwriters, solo artists, DJs and Bands, songwriters, solo artists, DJs and rappers are all invited to apply. Bookings for the auditions are being taken now.

The firm is run by three industry experts, with insider Malissa Whitehouse – who has worked with a host of big names like Travis and George Michael – heading up the team.

She wants to help newcomers pursue their dream and make a name for themselves.

She said: "This project is our chance to give something back to the music scene in Kent and we're hoping to find some great acts.

"We can help with their development and provide a doorway into the music industry for people who may not have had a chance."

Working with Malissa are producer Lee Golledge, who specialises in rock, indie and alternative material, and Tony Matthew, a former member of 80s soul band Soul II Soul.

The two are highly accomplished musicians and will be on hand to offer their advice to those who join the process.

those who join the process.

Malissa added: "We're open to all kinds of artists — whether you're a band looking for exposure or a singer who wants expert advice or studio time, anyone can apply."

To enquire about an audition spot, email Malissa@popsessions.co.uk. Include a brief description of who you are, what you do and a picture of yourself.

Extra savings, even on good-value policies

ANYONE interested in being paid up to  $\pounds 100$  simply for taking out home insurance? Or possibly even more than the cost of some premiums?

Many home insurance offers fail to live up to their promise but buying through a cashback website such as Topcashback can give genuine extra savings, even on policies that you have already confirmed as offering good value.

Experts analysing the market have pointed to the company as offering value for money on such deals.

For some policyholders, such commission rebates have worked out more than the cost of their annual premiums - with £67 the record overall profit, according to moneysavingexpert.com.

Household-name insurers that Topcashback offers rebates for include Aviva and Lloyds TSB, where up to £75 is on offer. However, cashbacks are not available on all insurers and there is no guarantee that these incentives will actually pay out.

We don't want to buy, we just want to snoop

A SURVEY by PropertyLive.co.uk has revealed that 20 per cent of people view houses just to snoop around other people's homes.

The survey found that one in five said they had viewed a property they could not afford and were not even looking to buy a home. According to the research, seven per cent said they liked to view houses to get ideas for their own homes.

Meanwhile, a previous survey conducted by PropertyLive.co.uk discovered that 12 per cent of people looked on property websites to find out how much their neighbours' homes were worth.

Peter Bolton King, chief executive of the National Federation of Property Professionals, said: "It's no secret that Britons are obsessed with looking at property, but what this research suggests is that for some people it has become a full-time hobby."

Interest rates are held

THE Bank of England has announced it is holding interest rates at 0.5 per cent for the third consecutive month.

The level of interest was announced alongside a continued focus on quantitative easing.

Housing market specialists were left unsurprised by the news, which had been predicted for some time. However, they added it was a good move.

KEY OF THE DOOR: The house rental market is starting to show a sustained recovery thanks to falling supply and rising prices, but the opposite situation exists for flats

Rent market for houses shows encouraging signs but flats lagging behind

HOUSES and flats have gone in different ways in the rental market, with houses beginning to show the first signs of recovery.

FindaProperty.com's rental index for May discovered the average asking rent remained unchanged, despite being 5.5 per cent lower than last year, with signs the rental market for houses and flats was beginning to divide.

A fall in house supply in the rental market was seen for the third consecutive month, as well as a modest rise in rents, while flats continued to suffer from rising supply and falling rents.

Properties were on the rental market for 16 days longer than in May last year, with FindaProperty saying "there are early signs of recovery with monthly rental growth in the South East". Rental yield fell slightly to 4.56 per cent, with average yields now standing at

BY NICK AMES

4.31 per cent for houses and 5.25 per cent for flats.

Andrew Smith, head of the research, said: "A slowing in the increase of supply and signs that asking rents are beginning to stabilise indicate that we may be close to the bottom of the rental market.

Full swing

"However, the house and flat markets continue to polarise, with houses starting to show a sustained recovery thanks to falling supply levels and rising prices, while the flat market seems to be lagging behind with increasing supply levels and asking rents that continue to fall."

In the capital, asking rents were experiencing a rise of 0.4 per cent for May, now standing at £1,630 pcm, compared with the average UK asking rent of £819.

The largest month-on-month increase in rents was experienced in Scotland, where a rise of 0.9 per cent took the average asking rent to £693 per month.

The West Midlands also experienced a 0.3 per cent month-on-month increase in rental prices, which FindaProperty.com said was driven partially by a 1.9 per cent increase in rents for properties in Birmingham.

Mr Smith said: "In line with the overall pic-

Mr Smith said: "In line with the overall picture of the UK rental market, there are some early signs of regional revival, with London and the South East leading the way in England, and Scotland also experiencing rental growth. However, there is still a long way to go until the recovery is in full swing.

"All of the regions continue to show year-onyear rental declines and a number of regional cities are still registering double-digit falls in price.

High-fiver Skoda also goes a touch greener

SKODA is taking orders on the Octavia Greenline, joining the Fabia and Superb Greenline in the Czech marque's line-up of most environmentally-friendly models.

Its frugal low emission (114g/km of CO2) 1.6-litre diesel is highly tax-efficient for company car users. Skoda – just confirmed in the JD Power customer satisfaction survey top five for the 14th year in succession – has also boosted Scrappage allowances on the Octavia range.

Prices range from just £8,995 for anyone trading in a car 10 or more years old.

Soul star sitting high in charts after launch

KIA sold 1,000 eye-catching Soul models within 100 days of launch – an impressive feat in the recession for a car breaking new ground for the UK and the Korean carmaker.

Half of sales were for the mid-range Soul 2, but Kia has tapped a rich marketing seam through 'Originals' custom packages, with the Soul Shaker landing 16 per cent slice of all sales; it comes with 18-inch alloys, houndstooth interior trim and reversing camera with a small LCD screen hidden in the rear view mirror.

Volvo celebrates taking top What Car? honour

VOLVO scooped top honours at the 2009 What Car? Green Car Awards with its S40 1.6D DRIVe featuring new Start/Stop technology.

The Swede beat the BMW 118d and Renault Megane in the small family category before storming to victory against other category winners helped by CO2 emissions of just 104g/km (£35/year road tax) and returning 72.4mpg on the official combined cycle, but also scored for practicality, safety and driver enjoyment.

LEADING THE WAY: The SLK looks good and is suited to long-distance business meetings or a weekend away with boot space for two decent-sized bags, even with the roof folded down

SLK's class shows in the race to be best crop top

IN one way the Mercedes-Benz SLK has been the top crop top since the original arrived in 1996, with an electric folding hardtop.

Only recently have some two-seat roadster rivals matched this secure and all-year weather protection, but the Merc struggled for credibility due to the first generation car's limp driving experience.

Fortunately, this image has been turned around by its 2004 replacement; while carrying over that clever roof—which makes the car look great when up or down—the SLK Mark II is sharper-suited with a front end inspired by the McLaren Mercedes SLR supercar.

The interior is well arranged, though starting to look cheaper as newer rivals emerge; the more affordable 200 Kompressor (£29,445) entry model wears it better than the £36,580 3.5-litre version tested here – especially when extras take the final bill to fifty-plus grand.

But you forgive lots when you walk out to the SLK; it looks good and is easy to get into when you have waited a long time to realise a two-seat dream.

Once in motion, it feels solid even with roof down and the wind deflector – £210 extra, I'm afraid – and side windows allow easy conversation even at the legal motorway limit.

For the SLK is that rare sports car truly suited to a long distance business meeting or weekend away; the folded roof steals boot space, but there is room for two decent-size soft bags — capacity drops from 300 to 208 litres when the roof is retracted — and plenty of stowage inside the cabin.

The £200 'Direct Steering' pack on our car made the wheel a bit too light, but the SLK's rear-driven chassis is beautifully-weighted and the optional sports chassis (£185) is set up to hug even tighter to corners, yet ride quality is excellent for this category.

Past experience shows the test car's 229bhp 3,498cc V6 is probably the best power option, though the 200 Kompressor and awesome 5.5-litre V8 AMG mount strong arguments.

However, the smooth V6 feels blunted some-

However, the smooth V6 feels blunted somewhat by the £1,575 seven-speed auto transmission. It changes smoothly, can be driven in manual mode and does not dent the car's performance, but I wonder if it might be liberated more by a self-shifter?

USED CAR ROUND-UP:

SMALL FAMILY ESTATES/HOLDALLS

SMALL MPVs are hot property in the used car market as buyers hunt family holdalls that are manageable, flexible and cheap to run. But not everyone likes the utilitarian 'one-box' styling, so we have chosen three used cars that have a little more style about them. The Citroën Xsara Picasso is technically another one-box design, but manages to stand out from the crowd, while the other two contenders here are more like conventional estates plus a dash of style. All three are available with decent and frugal diesel engines too.

FORD FOCUS ESTATE

NOT to be confused with the Focus C-Max MPV - another excellent alternative here – the standard estate offers that excellent Focus driving experience plus extra load lugging capacity. The Mark I estate is not as stylish as its replacement, but is the more practical and there is plenty of choice in the market; the arrival of the popular C-Max has made the Mark II estate a rarer item, but sought-after second-hand for its neat and classy rear end styling.

PEUGEOT 206SW

HERE is an MPV for people who do not want a car that looks like an MPV. Peugeot has a recent tradition for developing SW models that are really blown up estates with the space and versatility to attack rival MPVs without the penalty of being unwieldy or ugly. The 206SW is affordable with all the handling panache of the 206 hatch - Peugeot's best-selling model ever - and can be bought with one of the French marque's enviable diesel engines.

CITROËN XSARA PICASSO

LINES sometimes described as 'jelly mould' have not stopped the Picasso from being the best-selling midi-MPV for much of its life it stands out from the crowd and is airy and spacious inside. Refinement and ride are good, although the latter also makes the handling feel woolly on the corners. There is the extra bonus of smooth and frugal diesel options too and, with lots of new Picassos sold, used car hunters are spoilt for choice and price.

Mystery Shoppers needed in Thanet, Kent

We are currently recruiting for mystery shoppers of all ages in Thanet.

A mystery shopper is someone who visits an establishment, typically a retail store, for the purpose of observing and evaluating customer service, product quality and the environment of the establishment from a typical customer's perspective.

After visiting the specified establishment shoppers then complete an online visit questionnaire.

Good rates apply per mystery shop.

Please apply to ailishw@catalyst-mc.com and attach your CV. At IPS International we take education and training seriously, which is why we have been awarded Centre of Vocational Excellence (CoVE) status in Advanced Maintenance Engineering. We deliver apprentice and adult engineering training for major companies in Kent and throughout the UK.

BTEC National Certificate Engineering Programme Manager

We are looking for a suitably qualified person to join our team in the delivery of BTEC National Certificate in both Operations and Maintenance and Engineering at our Rochester training centre. You should have a graduate qualification or a minimum of an HNC in Engineering (electromechanical) or equivalent.

Relevant industrial experience in an engineering context is important. Experience of teaching and managing in FE is required along with an understanding of the requirements of employer organisations. Experience of managing quality requirements of awarding bodies is essential. Strong organisation, management and communication skills are required along with good IT and presentation skills.

IPS is a good company to work for; benefits include a friendly working environment, profit bonus, personal pension, life insurance, medical insurance and support for CPD training. Salary is negotiable and PART TIME OR FLEXIBLE WORKING is available depending on circumstances. To apply, email or post your CV with a covering letter.

IPS is an equal opportunities employer; we welcome applicants from all sectors of the community, including minority groups

BY DAVID PRITCHARD

Kent League Division Four Rodmersham 1st XI v Walmer 1st XI

RODMERSHAM stayed in touch with the leaders in Division Four after thrashing Walmer by 122 runs on Saturday.

The visitors' may have been questioning their decision to put Rodmersham into bat as the home side piled on the runs. Robert Horne and Dave Cogger put on 58 before the latter was run out, but it failed to stem the flow of runs.

While none of the hosts' line-up passed 50, a string of decent knocks kept the scoreboard ticking over and they reached 230 by the time they were all out in the final over. Andrew Cotton took 4 for 35 to knock over the tail cheaply, matching the number of victims notched up by Alan Cookson at the top of the order.

After losing Martyn North with just one run on the board, Walmer always looked to be fighting a losing battle. Only two of their batsmen reached double figures, their middle order tormented by Jack Bayford on his way to 5 for 12.

Only the gift of a generous extras column which included 16 wides took Walmer past 100, but they finally succumbed to the inevitable in the 37th over.

Victory kept Rodmersham fourth, while Walmer are one of four sides just above the bottom two nervously looking over their shoulder.

LOCAL CRICKET ROUND-UP

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION ONE

Folkestone 1st XI v Tenterden 1st XI

A DISASTROUS batting collapse saw Folkestone comfortably beaten by six wickets against Tenterden to leave them just three points above the bottom two.

The home side chose to bat after winning the toss and at 78 for 3 looked in good shape. But Daniel Clark's dismissal sparked an almighty slump which saw six more batsmen dismissed with just 17 runs added to the total.

Tenterden reached the lowly target with 18 overs to spare.

Sandwich Town 1st XI v Canterbury 1st XI

SANDWICH Town moved up to third in the table after they beat Canterbury by five wickets in a low scoring game at the Rutts

Craig Spanton struck twice early on as Canterbury slumped to 16 for 3, but the visitors rallied thanks to Simon Cucdent 42

Chasing 150 for victory, Sandwich rarely looked troubled thanks to Robert Goatham's unbeaten 49 and reached their target with almost four overs to spare.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION TWO

Broadstairs 1st XI v Sibton Park 1st XI

A GRITTY innings from Sibton Park skipper Steve Hobbs saw his side beat Broadstairs by one wicket in a low-scoring game.

Broadstairs were under pressure early on and only a cameo by Liam Narraway saw them pass three figures, but the victory target of 117 looked insufficient.

The league leaders very nearly made a mess of the run chase and were grateful to Hobbs, who took 50 balls to reach 15, to see them home.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION FIVE

Chislehurst & West Kent 1st XI v Betteshanger Colliery Welfare 1st XI

A CENTURY partnership between Clive Towe and Liam Collins set up a winning draw for Betteshanger Colliery to keep them in touch with the leaders in Division Five.

After losing Chris Garton for a duck, Towe and Collins put on 123 for the second wicket. Their innings laid the foundations for an imposing 261 from their 50 overs.

The home side began well but after falling behind the run rate, they dug in for a draw.

Scott took the crown at Prince's play-off

CUT: Hythe's Ant Tarchetti was unable to make the most of home advantage

PRINCE'S Golf Club hosted a dramatic finish to the Partypoker.com European Championship as Scott Jamieson clinched victory on a play-off.

The 25-year-old from Glasgow birdied the second extra hole to win the EuroPro Tour event on Thursday, beating fellow Scotsman Elliot Saltman at the course in Sandwich.

He told EuroPro's website: "Once you are in the play-off it turns into matchplay and I've always enjoyed that. There were definitely nerves on those play-off

Going into the final round there were ten players within two shots of the lead. Difficult conditions made scoring tougher than on the previous two days, with just one of the 51-strong field breaking 70.

Saltman and Chris Hanson, but picked up three birdies on the front nine to move into contention. He came back in level par to finish the tournament on nine-under-par.

It only looked enough for second place as Saltman came down the 18th one shot clear, but a bogey five set up a play-off.

Despite a host of local players in the field the majority missed the cut, including Prince's professionals Zane Scotland and Ant Tarchetti. Herne Bay's Steven Tiley, representing Royal Cinque Ports, was the highest local finisher in a share of 12th place.

The tour returns to Kent in August with the Virgin Atlantic 25th Anniversary Classic, held at Tudor Park near Maidstone.

TALENT: Ollie Brooks won most promising player award

Rising star Brooks scoops prize at awards ceremony

AFTER an excellent season in the Folkestone first-team, Ollie Brooks was named as the club's most promising player at the end of season awards.

Simon Harris won club player of the year and was also the supporters' choice, while Ben Crawford won the closely fought young Peli Crawiota win the closely lought young player gong.

While the senior side of the club is in good health following a fourth place finish in London 4 South East, the juniors recently showed they are going from strength to strength. Last month 170 youngsters crossed the channel to take part in an end of season tournament near Calais.

After an absence of six years the Stones once again entered the Challenge Jacques Ducasse tournament, held annually in Bethune. Of the 14 clubs at the event, only Folkestone and a team from Holland came from outside France.

The sizeable travelling party enjoyed mixed success, with the under-sevens the outstanding side, as in previous years.

With the French youth sides not playing tag rugby like their counterparts in the UK, the tournament was the first time the under-sevens had experienced full contact. The handicap did little to dent their progress as they reeled off a series of victories to finish the group stage unbeaten. They went on to beat Bethune A in the final to lift the trophy.

The other Folkestone age groups didn't hit the same heights. The under-eights made the quarter-finals of their competition, while the under-nines went one stage further only to be knocked out in the last four.

The under-tens and 11s played each other in the tenth place play-offs, while the under-13s and 15s both finished third in their age group. The latter took a squad of 42 players, enough to field three teams.

Hailed as a successful tour, the club hope foreign trips will become a regular event.

STAYING: Despite speculation linking him to Championship side Watford, Dover Athletic manager Andy Hessenthaler will remain in charge at Crabble as the new season nears

Hess stays at Crabble despite Watford link

FOOTBALL

BY TOM HOWARD

ANDY Hessenthaler insists he is focused on building his Dover Athletic squad for next season, following a week of speculation linking him to the vacant Watford manager post.

Several bookmakers stopped taking bets last week on the Dover boss taking over at Vicarage Road after Brendan Rodgers left the club to join Reading. But Hessenthaler, who has never hidden his desire to return to Football League management, said he never had any contact from the Championship side.

Hessenthaler, who played 195 times for the Hornets between 1991 and 1996, fast became one of the favourites for the Watford job, but the club's directors instead were expected to plump for reserve boss Malky Mackay.

Whites fans will be relieved the 43-year-old is staying at Crabble. Hessenthaler has been an instant success since joining Dover, winning consecutive Ryman South and Premier League titles.

With his side set for an assault on the Blue Square South next season, Hessenthaler says he is concentrating on bringing more success to the town. Elsewhere, the Whites have added to their defence with the signing of former AFC Wimbledon central defender Jake Leberl. Hessenthaler said: "I am glad we have signed Jake. He is a player who comes to us with experience and he knows the club well after his previous spell at Dover. We are a fairly young side, especially now without Alan Pouton, so his experience will be key in the Blue Square South.

"I have seen him play a few times and I remember he had a great game for AFC Wimbledon against us in the FA Cup last year.

"He is not particularly tall for a centre-half, but I envisage him playing there as his primary position, even though he can play in midfield."

Hessenthaler is also in the market for a striker but says he may have to wait until the season begins before he can bring someone in.

He said: "On the striker front I am in talks with a couple of players. We may have to be patient and wait. We have got a number of trialists coming down, so I will have a look at them in the next few weeks."
